Description of what you saw and heard

I was eating cold pad thai at a corner table with noise-canceling headphones on, studying for an organic chemistry quiz. I took my headphones off when the volume got hard to ignore.

There were three guys. I will describe them by clothing: one in a red hoodie, one in a gray beanie, and one in a green jacket. The guy in the red hoodie was sitting on a beanbag chair with a laptop. He was talking very fast about confetti and an "agent" and said "watch this." The other two kept saying "no" and something about "main." I did not understand any of it, which is why I got concerned.

The guy in the gray beanie was at the vending machine at first. Then he came over fast and dove across the table for the laptop lid. I am fairly sure about that. The guy in the green jacket walked over and yanked a cable out of the wall.

I did not see anyone punch, shove, or hit anyone. The red hoodie guy sort of sat down very hard on the beanbag. It tipped over and he ended up on the floor, but I honestly think he lost his balance on his own. I did not see anyone touch him.

A snack bar flew across the room. I think it came from the red hoodie guy toward the gray beanie guy, but I was not looking directly at him when it happened. I did not see a blue stress ball or any ball.

The whole thing lasted maybe four minutes. I called campus police because I could not tell if it was a fight or a really intense meeting. When the officer got there everyone was already calm and one of them was showing the officer something on a laptop.

Anything else?

My roommate Dana told me later that one of those guys "got into a fight last semester too," but I do not know which one or whether it is true. I am only including it because the form asked for anything else.
